

HOME HAPPENINGS

—Next Wednesday is Flag Day.

—Mother Earth these days is a regular old soak.

Complaints come from many parts of the village that rats are killing many young chickens.

—During the summer the Community Library at the normal building will be open Saturdays instead of Tuesdays.

—Children's Day will be observed at the Presbyterian church, the program taking the place of the regular morning services.

—A stated communication of Argus Masonic lodge will be held this (Friday) evening. There will be work in the F. C. degree.

—The W. C. T. U. will meet at the home of Mrs. Nathan Blott, north of the village, at 8 o'clock, eastern time, Friday evening, June 9.

—A small band of gypsies landed in town Wednesday afternoon but did not remain long after being given a hunch that fortune telling and horse trading, by nomads, was not regarded with favor here.

—One heavy rain after another has been the order for weeks and all kinds of outdoor work has been greatly interfered with. The last soaker started Tuesday night and kept at it nearly all day Wednesday.

—Complaint is made that rare pot-plants have been stolen from graves in the village cemetery the past week. An effort is being made to learn the identity of the offenders and prosecutions may result.

—D. W. Galehouse, county agricultural agent, and Charles Kriner, who for quite a number of years has operated a passenger transfer line between Canfield and Youngstown, the past week purchased Ford touring cars of R. D. Fowler.

—Word comes from the Youngstown City hospital that Harry Kargbets, the young Greek track walker who accidentally shot himself in the abdomen two weeks ago, is recovering and hopes to soon be able to resume work on the Canfield section of the Erie.

—G. W. Hegg and Miss Zoa Scribner of Akron called at the West Main street home of Dr. J. M. Kendig, their former pastor, and were united in marriage. The young people were accompanied here in an automobile by Mr. and Mrs. John Delana, also of Akron.

—Ohio State telephone service between Youngstown and Canfield will shortly be greatly improved. General Manager G. K. King advises the Dispatch that material has been ordered for two additional lines and that no time will be lost in getting them in working order.

—Contractor Kane of Youngstown has resumed work on the Boardman-Canfield road east of the village and monster trucks are run day and night hauling material from the railroad. The road was to have been completed last year but weather conditions prevented. During the winter the road broke through in places and great holes developed, making travel over it anything but a comfort and a joy. Several weeks will elapse before the highway is given the finishing touches.

—Dr. and Mrs. J. M. Kendig of Canfield were in Columbiana last Sunday when the former assisted at the funeral of Mrs. Catherine Firestone who died last Friday of a complication of diseases, aged 78. Deceased was the widow of Benjamin Firestone and the mother of the Firestone brothers, Elmer of San Francisco, Harvey and Robert of Akron who have acquired great wealth and fame as automobile tire manufacturers. Deceased was born near Columbiana and spent all her long life in that locality. Interment was made in the Columbiana cemetery.

—Talking about "horse sense," what is the matter of this horse owned by H. J. Dickson, east of the village? An old cat had a family of kittens under the manger in the barn and after the little fellows got their eyes open developed the desire, like their papa, to roam around. One of them found its way into the manger and on to the hay the horse was eating. Dobbins noted the invasion, and taking the helpless by the nape of the neck between its teeth lifted it gently into the feed box and out of danger. The performance was witnessed by Mr. Dickson's daughter Thelma so the truth of the story can be vouched for.

—A rain, electrical and wind storm of unusual severity visited this section last Friday evening which played havoc with telephone service, many lines being put out of commission. Many trees were twisted off and some were uprooted. A large limb from a moose tree in P. T. Jones' yard on North Broad street fell across the road, blocking traffic for a time. Numerous trees were struck by lightning and damaged. The barn of E. P. Tanner on the Salem road was struck and some weather boards torn off by all the lightning. A mile south of the west of Cornersburg the storm was of a cyclonic nature. Substantially all the trees left standing in John Fink's woods when the heavy timber was cut last year were either twisted off or uprooted. Fruit trees in that locality also suffered greatly.

—Emil Muller, a young German employed at the plant of the American Fire Clay Co. was accidentally shot in the back by his room-mate, Peter Bauman, Monday morning while lying in bed. Bauman was cleaning a .30-06 rifle which was in some manner discharged and the 22-caliber bullet entered Muller's back and penetrated the intestines. Drs. D. and C. H. Campbell were called and finding the wound a dangerous one had the man taken in the county ambulance to the Youngstown City hospital. It is thought he will recover. While no one witnessed the shooting it is believed by those familiar with the circumstances that it was purely accidental, as Bauman claimed. However, he evidently became alarmed and on Tuesday drew about $100 he had deposited in bank and left without paying his board bill. He has about $40 coming to him from the Clay Co. but he had agreed to pay Bauman's doctor and hospital bills. There was a fight among men employed at the plant Sunday night which grew out of discussion of the European war, but Bauman had no part in it and he and Muller were good friends.

—June gives no evidence of being hot stuff.

—Hereafter in making announcements the Dispatch Eastern time will be used.

—A large tank for a gasoline filling station is being sunk in the street in front of Roy Metzler's store.

—Children's day exercises will be held in the Presbyterian church next Sunday morning at 10 o'clock eastern.

—A meeting of the board of county fair managers was held in Canfield Thursday when matters relating to the coming fair were considered.

—The county commissioners have decided to have the macadam road between Cornersburg and the beach tree corner on Lynn street resurfaced this summer.

—Local Rebekahs held a very enjoyable session Tuesday evening. As the result of a recent contest the winners were dined by the losers. A large attendance added much to the occasion.

—The program for the next meeting of Dublin Grange, Tuesday evening, June 13, will be in the hands of the Juvenile Grange and will consist of performances and degree work by the children.

—Gypsy women fortune tellers worked Lisbon the other day and one of them took a ten-spot from a man's pocket. The outfit was arrested and after being fined told to make the mud fly getting out of town.

—Tuesday while T. D. Carpenter was testing a Smith motor wheel, for which he is agent, the saddle of his customer's bicycle turned and he was pitched headlong into the park. Fortunately he escaped injury.

—At a meeting of the presidents of boards of education in Austintown, Jackson, Milton, Berlin, Ellsworth, Canfield and Green townships, held last Saturday in the normal building, Prof. J. C. Skaggs was re-elected district superintendent for one year.

—John Flannigan, who was sent to the state institution for feeble minded in Columbus some months since, escaped and made his way back to the village this week. He was taken into custody and is being held in the lock-up for an officer who has been sent to take him back to Columbus.

—The Youngstown Chamber of Commerce which announced an automobile bill of neighboring cities and towns for Tuesday of this week, and supper at the Methodist church in this place, postponed its outing on account of the Garver meeting in Youngstown for small town merchants and the original program will be carried out Tuesday, June 20.

—A large party of little folks made merry Monday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. R. McCusky on West Main street when their daughter Lucille celebrated her sixth birthday anniversary. After playing various games for several hours the children were called into the house and Mrs. McCusky served excellent refreshments. Lucille was the recipient of a number of gifts.

—A long drawn out meeting of Council held Monday night when the granting of an electric light franchise was the principal matter considered. An ordinance presented by the Canfield Gas & Electric Co. was given its first reading but some changes may be made before it is passed. An ordinance providing for licensing peddlers and one covering the pay roll were passed under suspension of the rules.

A man of sterling qualities he commanded the respect and esteem of all who knew him. He was a member of the Toronto Presbyterian church and Urbicville Masonic lodge. On March 22, 1911, he was united in marriage with Miss Margaret Ault of Costonia, Ohio, who, with two children, Margaret and Leroy, Jr., survives him. THE DOG AS A CARRIER OF DISEASE TO STOCK

The dog in the country is a useful and pleasant adjunct to the farm if he is properly controlled and cared for, but when neglected, may readily become a carrier of disease to stock, in addition to gaining opportunity to kill sheep and destroy gardens and other property. Dog ordinances, as a general rule, have been intended chiefly to curb the dog's power of doing harm by attacking, biting, killing or running sheep or stock. The part that he plays as a carrier of disease to animals only recently has been recognized, according to the zoologists of the Department of Agriculture, who believe that when this is better understood, rural ordinances and laws which lessen this danger will gain the support of the community.

Of the diseases carried to stock by dogs, the foot and mouth disease is probably of the greatest interest at this time. In this case the dog acts as a mechanical carrier of infection. The dog which runs across an infected farm may carry in the dirt on his feet the virus of this most contagious of animal diseases to other farms and thus spread the disease to the neighboring herds. In infected localities it is absolutely essential, therefore, to keep all dogs chained and never to allow them off the farm except on leash.

There are, however, many other maladies in the spread of which the dog takes an active part. In Bulletin 260 of the United States Department of Agriculture, "The Dog as a Carrier of Parasites and Disease," it is pointed out that rabies, hydatid, ringworm, favus, double potted tapeworm, roundworm and tongue worm are often conveyed to human beings in this way. It occasionally happens also that the dog helps fleas and ticks in transmitting bubonic plague or deadly spotted fever.

Hydatid disease is caused by the presence in the liver, kidneys, brain, lungs, and other organs, of a bladder worm or larval tapeworm. Bladder worms are often as large as an orange and may be larger. A dog which is allowed to feed on carrion or the raw viscera of slaughtered animals may eat all or part of a bladder worm containing numerous tapeworm heads. These tapeworm heads develop into small segmented tapeworms in the intestines of the dog. The tapeworms in turn develop eggs which are passed out in the excrement of the dog. They are spread broadcast on grass and in every well eaten them and thus become infected. The hog is particularly liable to this disease because of its rooting habits. The eggs may get into human food, and persons who allow dogs to lick their hands and face also run the risk of getting the eggs of the tapeworm in their systems.

Prevention on the farms consists in so restraining the dog that he can not get at carrion or raw viscera. Viscera should be boiled before being fed to dogs and should never be thrown on the fields. If not cooked and fed, viscera and carcasses should be burned, buried with lime, or so disposed of as not to be accessible to dogs. Proper feeding of the dog is essential, and the owner who does not feed a dog properly has no right to keep one.

The parasite which causes ringworm in sheep somewhat resembles the hydatid worm. A dog allowed to eat the brain of a giddy sheep may swallow this parasite and later distribute the eggs of the resulting tapeworm over the pasture. Sheep while grazing swallow the eggs with the grass they eat.

In the case of sheep dogs it is important to administer vermifuges often enough to keep them free from these worms. In the case of sheep measles, the bladder worm in the meat, typical of this disease, is swallowed by the dog and again the tapeworm eggs are passed by the dog to the grass or water, and there are eaten by sheep.

Of the external parasites which dogs may carry to animals, fleas and the various kinds of ticks are both troublesome and dangerous. The remedy is clear. The owner must keep his dog clean, not merely for the comfort and happiness of the dog, but to prevent it from becoming a carrier of disagreeable and dangerous vermin.

These reasonable measures important to the stock on the farm, have a direct connection with the health of the family. Where ringworm or other skin diseases break out among the children, or the worm parasites develop, it is well to determine whether a dirty or uncared for dog may not be carrying infection on his skin or hair, or be conveying disease from carrion directly to the food and persons of his friends. Even if no one is infected with disease, the folly of allowing a dog to remain dirty and have the freedom of a home where personal cleanliness and hygiene are respected is apparent.

It behooves every young man who expects to secure his living from the soil to prepare himself for his life work just as thoroughly as his circumstances will permit. He may do this by studying at home and by observing the methods of successful farmers, he may attend farmers' institutes, he may read experiment station literature and farm papers, he may attend a short winter course at his agricultural school, he may take a two year course or a regular four year college course in agriculture. There are innumerable opportunities. The choice of these rests with the man himself, but the fact remains that if he is to compete successfully with his neighbors he must secure the best possible preparation.

—Raymond Sanderson of Mineral Ridge, aged 15, who recently graduated from the Mineral Ridge high school, was using a blow torch to melt metal in his father's barn Monday when the torch exploded and scattered flaming gasoline over him. He was so badly burned that death resulted a few hours later. The barn burned.
